

Announcing Embodying Degrowth: An Event with The Maintainers Movement Fellows

Thursday, December 15 2022 | 2–3 PM EST | Register for the event here!

Join The Maintainers Movement Fellows for an end-of-year celebration as they showcase their collaborative project, Embodying Degrowth. This event serves as a celebration of this year-long fellowship, where we wish to further tie together the many aspects of their collaborative project. Throughout the year, they wove together understandings and questions relating to maintenance, care and how it relates to the current environmental challenges we face.

The Embodying Degrowth project ties together several conversations the Movement Fellows held with interviewees. The Movement Fellows will explore the themes and share about their process of coming to better understand what is needed to embody degrowth.

“To even consider the practical possibilities of degrowth requires working from the acknowledgement that life on this planet is a complex web of inter-being in which the conditions for our ability to live are fundamentally intertwined. No model for planetary co-existence, growth-based or otherwise, can sustain itself if it does not attend to that sacred fact.”

Max Alvarez, host of the Working People Podcast will introduce the Embodying Degrowth podcast episode, which will then lead us to talk about the project as a whole. From there, we’ll be joined with the Fellowship group as they converse about the project and spotlight those they interviewed throughout the project. To close, we’ll open up the floor to our audience to share reflections, offer actionable solutions, and celebrate the work of The 2022 Maintainers Movement Fellowship.

After the event, you will receive a takeaway document, outlining the many aspects, questions, and actions that you can take to embody degrowth.
